Reykjavik is the land of the midnight sun, and a beautiful destination for seasonal travel and tourism. The apartment complex, called Austurhöfn, is located on the waterfront next to the old harbor and features a stylish modern design with such amenities as panoramic windows and granite countertops. Austurhöfn perfectly illustrates how smart technology, as a part of the fundamental design plan, can bring added value and enhanced lifestyle to residents of these upscale multi-dwelling urban homes.

Home Theatre

Completely customizable seating, incorporating a variety of specialized one-of-a-kind accessories, provides the tools to truly design your home theater. If you can imagine it...

we can build it.

Accessories / customisations include: Motorised headrests, Motorised lumbar support, riser chair, Tall back, Concealed cup holders, reading lamps, retractable trays (motorised if required), retractable touch screens, folding armrests, Inset table tops, rotating tables, storage compartments, heated seats, massage seats, custom logos, data and power point integration etc

Tactile Transducer

A tactile transducer adds a 4th dimension to the audio, providing a positive vibration into the seat itself in tune with the music. It works like an additional sub-woofer, but creating a physical vibration in the seat. Most seats are able to be adapted to take a tactile transducer, as it doesn't put significant stress on the seat.

Recline Mechanism

With a recline mechanism, the seat back tilts back while the leg-rest comes up to bring you into a reclined position. Seats with a recline mechanism require extra room behind the seat for the back to recline into. Most manufacturers have moved away from a recline mechanism to the more popular incline mechanism (see below).

Incline Mechanism

An Incline mechanism as opposed to recline, slides the seat forwards as the back goes down. This reaches a similar laid-back position as the recline mechanism, however does it with minimal space requirements behind the seat – these are ideal where the seat backs onto a wall at the rear of the room, or has another row on a platform behind it. Most of our brands include incline mechanisms.
